Southward-Corbett's Hopes and Plans. The Other Braisers-The Betting.

Regarding the series of prize-fights to ake place in New Orleans this week a Crescent City special of Friday night to the New York World says: Much preparaon is being made for the reception of the stars of the carnival, Sullivan will be the first to arrive on the scene. Captain Wilms and several Olympic Club officials will go cut on a special train to meet him. At this hour the exact time of his arrival is not known. Sullivan's reception in the city will hardly be as enthusiastic as it was in 1883. Previous to his fight with Jake Kilrain the big fellow was extended any courtesies by the Young Men's Gymnastic Club, on Rampart street. Tho ub threw its doors wide open.

John used the gymnasium and the plunges and was treated with the greatest consideration. After the battle, however, be proceeded to look upon the wine when it was red. Before he finished with the beverage it had all the colors of the rainbow. In this condition he entered the club and took a seat in the cofe. While there a member who had witnessed the champion's victory over Kilrain came up to John and congratulated him. John said to him: "You won some money on the fight, didn't you?" The member replied that he had won a few bets, whereupon the champion suggested in a somewhat commanding tone that it would be eminently proper for the member to "set 'em up."

eminently proper for the member to "set 'em up."

This sort of a proceeding is not popular in New Orleans. No man of any consequence can enter the city without receiving boundless hospitality and attention. His social status cuts no particular figure as long as he behaves himself as a rational human being. But it is hardly necessary to say that the member of the Young Men's Gymnastic Club who received Mr. Sullivan's invitation to treat declined to do so. In fact, the proposition so far met with his disapperovol as to cause him to inform the "nineteenth century gladiator" that if he wasn't more careful in his speech there would be a pugilistic picture turned toward the wall.

A few days ago the question of granting the privileges of the clubto the big fellow came up again. There was an exciting debate among the members, and it was decided that he should not be invited. This conclusion was reached by the anti-Sullivanites casting one more vote than his friends. He has however, received a card granting him the privileges of the club from one of its members. Whether he will avail himself of this opportunity is causing some talk among the sporting men.

He will need some place to exercise, and men.

He will need some piace to exercise, and the Young Men's Gymnastic Club is very convenient to Mrs. Green's house on Rampart street, where he will stay. No doubt the champion much regrets his unfortunate "break," and if he is given a chance will probably apologize to the member whom he treated so rudely in 1839. CORRECT'S RECEPTION DIFFERENT.

Corbett's reception different.

Corbett's reception; will be somewhat different. He will be met at the station by President James Campbell, of the Southern Athletic Club; Walker Ross, the club's secretary; S. P. Wamsley, and several other prominent members of the Crewent City's aristocratic athletic organization. Besides there will be several delegations of workingmen on hand to encourage him with their cheers, it is possible that the latter feature of the demonstration is not wholly spontane-It is possible that the latter feature of the demonstration is not wholly spontaneous. Edward Thurnauer, who is the advance agent for William Brady's highly-artistic drama, "After Dark," has been in town several days booming Corbett's stock. While it is not probable, it is just possible that Mr. Thurnauer wanted to have all classes represented in the demonstration and used his influence with the stevelders to have them turn out. Corevedores to have them turn out. Cor-

Professor John H. Duffy, who will positively referee the three big contests, expressed to a reporter to-night what he considered fair and unfair boxing under Queensberry rules: "I am not opposed to in-fighing," he said, "but if the men do not separate in the case of a hug or a clinch I shall step in between them. I consider it a foul for one man to them. I consider it a foul for one man to hit another while breaking away. In suc-cases the men should be at least two feet apart before they are allowed to proceed."

Professor Duffy has a very intelligent idea of what will be required of him next week and will undoubtedly give satisfaction.

Like many other men, however, Collins was not satisfied, and last night about 12 o'clock he stepped into the Merchants' Club with an air which seemed to say, "I own corner lots in Kansas City." When he left the club this morning $5,000 of the $5,500 which he extracted from Mr. Bush's tiger was in the clutches of the beast controlled by Messrs. Duffy & Renaud. Mr. Collins sat on the veranda of the St. Charles Hotel to-night debating with himself which of the two tigers it would be better to tackle early to-morrow morning.

CORBETT CHANGES HIS PLANS. He Will Keep Away from New Orleans as Long as Possible.

Long as Possible.

An Asbury Park special of Friday night says: William A. Brady, who is looking after the interests of Jim Corbett, has again changed his mind about the route he is to take in leaving the training quarters at Loch Arbour for New Orleans. Instead of having a special car attached to the 1:15 train to Jersey City, as was yesterday decided upc 1, the party will go by regular train from North Asbury Park to Philadelphia by the way of Sea Girt, Monmouth Junction, and Trenton.

At Philadelphia the party will board the Corbett's special, and at Wasbington the combination car Escort and a baggage-car will be added to the train. The Escort is for Corbett's special use, and the baggage-car has been fitted up with the punching-bag, weights, &c. At Charlotte, N. C., the Escort and the baggage-car will be cut from the train, and Corbett will remain there for at least twenty-four hours.

Manager Brady fears that the New Orleans climate will upset Corbett, so he wants to ward against any such contingency by remaining away from the city as long as he possibly can. The New Orleans climate, Corbett says, always has a depressing effect upon him. It is the intention of Manager Brady to have Corbett pressing effect upon him. It is the inten-tion of Manager Brady to have Corbett Corbett first saw the light of day in San Francisco twenty-five years ago. He is 6 feet 114 inches tall, and he hopes to weigh 180 pounds on the 7th.

The admirers of "Jim" Corbett are very slow in backing the Californian against John L. Sullivan, says the New York Herald. The Sullivan men have got a lot of money which they are very anxious to place at odds of 100 to 70 and 100 to 60, but they have got a lot of the fact of the fa thus far they have only been able to lay a pince at odds of 100 to 70 and 100 to 59, but thus far they have only been able to lay a few wagers.

One of the largest bets made yesterday was that of "Maggie" Cline, the variety actress, who, through her agent, John Ryan, of Brooklyn, wagered $1,000 to $700 on Sullivan. "Maggie" says John L. will drop "Jim" Corbett quicker and harder than "Throw-Him-Down McCloskey."

Ridge Levien, the book-maker, says he finds it impossible to get any Corbett money. Levien has $3,000 to place for Sullivan's admirers at odds of 100 to 60, but owing to the small amount of Corbett money affoat he had only been able to place a small portion of it. In fact, he claims that it is harder to find men willing to back the Californian than it is to pick winners at Gloucester. The Corbett men want 2 to 1 or better for their money. Levien will leave for New Orleans to-day, and hopes to find some men in the Molasses City who think "Jim" will win to cover has money.

The question of color is receiving some attention in the Skelly and Dixon match. Dixon has been and will be accorded perfectly fair play, but some of the people here, particularly those who do not look with favor upon the Olympic Club and are jealous of its success, that Skeelly is no match for the colored lad, and that his victory would not have a pleasing effect upon the southern negro as a whole.

It is only fair to the Olympic Club to say that Skelly was the best man to be found to meet Dixon under the terms stipulated by Manager Tom O'Rourke. These forms called for a side bet of $5,000, and it is just possible that although he is an amateur the dissenting southerners may find occasion to change their opinion of the Brooklyn lad by mext Wednesday morning.

WILLIAM MEYER.

The meeting between Jack McAuliffe and William Meyer for the middle-weight honors, is the first of the three great puglistic events under the auspices of the Olympic Club of New Orleans. Their first encounter took place at Judson, Ind., two of three years ago and resulted in a draw. Meyer kept backing off after a few rounds with the evident purpose of mixing the fight a draw, and when asked why he clid so replied that everybody in Streator, Ill., his native town, had but their just dellar on humaif and he was the and punched the fat heavy-weight on the other side and Tracy roared for mercy. It was a hungry and dryly crowd that filed out of the cars and into the grimy dining-room at the railway depot when Erie was reached at 9:25 o'clock. Orders had been wired ahead to prepare breakfast for 200 persons, but the half a dozen girl waiters stood aghast when the brigade charged on the counters and tables. It was a case of every man for himself, and as the night had been cold and the cars draughty, they were in no mood to be trifled with. In less than five minutes everything in sight had been swept away, and there were yells of indignation when nothing more could be had. It meant nothing to eat until Crestline, O., was reached at 2:30 o'clock in the atternoon.

the gate-keeper to let them through. There were loud cries for the champion, and in response John ambied to the steps of the car, removed his cap, and bowed of the car, removed his cap, and bowed his acknowledgements, withdrawing quickly, as abashed as a schoolboy. The crowd gave three cheers in his honor. While the train waited the sports from New York, Boston, and along the line got out and stretched their legs.

BILLY MEYER'S CONDITION.

Entertainment Provided for Sullivan and Corbett-Sullivan Money Pientiful. [By telegraph to the Dispatch.]

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

New Orleans, La., September S.—Billy Meyer, at his training quarters, rose early this morning, and during the forenoon put in some time at work. He had reached here at a late hour, but to-day feels none of the effects of his long ride and hopes before Monday night to easily pull off a couple of pounds of his present weight, which is 135 nounds.

Supper was taken by Sullivan in his state-room, Phil. Casey fighting his way to the depot dining-room to procure the dibles. The stop of an hour gave the Sul-ivan party a chance to stretch their legs and eat a hearty supper. John Sullivan, the big fellow's first backer, met the champion at Franklin and travelled to Cinand eata hearty supper, John Shinyan, the big fellow's first backer, met the champion at Franklin and travelled to Cincinnati with him.

The abominable management of the "Sullivan special" is going to put the champion in New Orleans on Sunday morning instead of Saturday evening. This was learned this afternoon when General Passenger-Agent David G. Edwards, of the Queen and Crescent route, boarded the train at Franklin and announced that he had received no notification of the coming of the train, He was willing, however, to do anything in his power to facilitate matters, and said that he would give the backers of Sullivan an opportunity to go through by special train drawn by the fastest engine on the road, or to go on a regular scheduled train at a much slower rate of speed. He explained that the fast trip would be fraught with no small amount of danger, while the other course would land everybody in safety six or seven hours later. By the first plan New Orleans would be reached by 10 o'clock to-morrow evening, and by the latter, which was finally agreed upon, the trip will not be ended until 5 or 6 o'clock on Sunday morning.

The Tennessee authorities want Charley Johnson for the part he played in the Sullivan-Klirain fight, and there may be an attempt to capture him. At any rate Johnston and Wakely are both shaky.

At 8:32 o'clock to-night, with a new monster engine weighing 127,000 pounds clutching the coaches, the train steamed quickly out of the depot, swung over the placid Ohio, and crossed Mason & Dixon's line into the Sunny South.

possibility of arrest or detention in the State that once caused Sullivan so much trouble. Approaching the outskirts of Chattanooga, the train proper ran over the main line into the city station. The Sullivan car, however, was diverted as it came through, and ran through the outskirts towards Lookout Mountain and away into the open country again.

Meanwhile Sullivan had been awakened, and went to the baggage-car with his trainers about 7:30 o'clock. There he tossed the five-pound leather bag twenty minutes and then skipped the rope 300 times. He will reach New Orleans about 7 o'clock to-morrow morning.

couple of pounds or his present weight, which is 138 pounds.

The Olympic Club is arranging for the reception of Sullivan, and will see that quarters are prepared for him. The Sullivan people are highly elated at the reports of the champion's condition, and there is pienty of Sullivan money on hand. The Southern Athletic Club will receive Corbett.
